

■ Prominent Indian-American Politician Nikki Haley Announces US Presidential Bid

Nikki Haley, the former governor of South Carolina and U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, has announced that she will make a bid for the White House, becoming the first Republican to challenge former President Donald Trump for the party's nomination. Haley, who served under Trump, made the announcement in a video posted online, in which she declared that it's time for a new generation of leadership. The daughter of Indian immigrants, Haley was born in Bamberg, South Carolina, and was Carolina's first female governor and the first Indian-American to lead the state. If she wins the Republican presidential nomination in 2024, she would make history again as the first woman and first Asian-American at the top of the GOP (Grand Old Party) ticket.
