

Smart parrots

ISTOCK.COM/TRUEPIXELART

■ By analysing hundreds of recordings from pet parrots, researchers based at the University of Pittsburgh, US, found that many birds use specific names to identify particular people, animals and even individual companions. Some parrots appeared to refer to someone who wasn't present, while others used names in creative ways, such as saying their own name to grab attention.